i wrote this after ending a three year relationship.

Jeopardy

Relish the relics that we left behind
The texts and the voicemails
The super long drives
Comfort in silence I learned to lean into, grabbed me in your sleep
Now I just make do

I was a live wire and you were forgiving
A terrible feeling that something went missing
Spring I was lonely, summer we faded
I loved you in autumn but dear it was jaded

I hate the part that repeats, the chorus
It's hard to remember anything before us
Underlying pain, unrelenting
Freed from the shackles leave me just lamenting

But you cut your hair
We had started to drift
Now the person I loved
He doesn't exist
How unfair are memories
My heart is in jeopardy

I'll be here waiting to grow back together
Weeds in the garden they change with the weather
I'll be (i'll be here waiting)
I'll be here

And sure there are things I can't say I miss
How fine of a comb do we brush this with?
Do you have thoughts? Things left to say
Takes two to tango,
One to dig a grave